Report of 2 Cases of Primary Epithelioid Hemangioendothelioma of the External Iliac Vein

Alberto Muñoz, MD, Julio A. Díaz-Perez, MD, MS, Alfredo E. Romero-Rojas, MD, Elizabeth Hernandez, MD, Francisco Martín-Berdazco, MD

First Published June 11, 2013 | Case Report | https://doi.org/10.1177/1365541413492391

Abstract

The epithelioid hemangioendothelioma (EHE) is a rare type of endothelial neoplasm found mainly in soft tissues and visceral organs and in extraordinary cases in large veins like the iliac veins. Currently, there is an active discussion in which EHE behavior, classification, new diagnostic tools, and treatment procedures are proposed.